

network and computer systems

“We can build the slickest system available with all the bells and whistles, but if it does not effectively meet the needs of the client, we have not done our job.”

– Greg Marchand,
President, MT

Watching your highly-paid employees discuss reality television because your network crashed is painful and spending hours on the phone with tech support as you fight an unreliable home computer while your Saturday slips away, amounts only to frustration and lost time.

Marchand Technologies builds customized, extremely dependable network and computer systems that greatly reduce downtime. From home computers to extensive networks, our unobtrusive installment practices minimize lost time and maximize circumstantial productivity. Our technicians hold certifications in Apple and Windows environment operations and have earned the highest level of computer technician certification for Apple, Dell and HP machines. And, as licensed contractors, we can build everything behind your walls before they're constructed, reducing cost and completion time.

Marchand Technologies strives to deliver our clients exactly what they need and our proven consultative process makes certain you understand all the options available. We keep meticulous records on every system we build, which helps you avoid needless crashes by performing timely, seamless upgrades.

Contact us today to see how an investment in a network or computer system installed by Marchand Technologies will reduce cost, lost time and frustration.
